

EVERY DOJO TELLS A STORY.
EVERY MEMBER ADDS A CHAPTER.

A dojo is more than a place to train — It is a collection of stories shaped by the people who step onto the deck day after day. Each class, each challenge, each moment of growth becomes part of something larger than any one individual. Over time, these shared experiences form a living history, carried forward through generations of students.

Every member adds a chapter to that story. Whether your journey began decades ago or only recently, your experiences matter. The lessons you learned, the obstacles you faced, and the reasons you continue to train all contribute to the path we walk together. These chapters, written through effort and perseverance, connect us to those who came before and inspire those who will follow.

A Journey of Remembrance is an invitation to reflect on that shared story — to recognize the role each dojo and each member has played in shaping what we are today. By coming together, we honor the past, strengthen the present, and ensure that the spirit of our training continues to live on.

This is a moment to remember, to reconnect, and to add your chapter to a story still being written. Make sure not to miss this unique event in our shared journey.

A JOURNEY OF REMEMBRANCE

A single man's vision can shape more than a moment — it can shape generations.

Hanshi Frank Grant envisioned an organization built not only on strong technique, but on character, discipline, and unity. His goal was never simply to teach karate, but to create a path where students could grow as individuals, leaders, and members of a greater community.

Through dedication, consistency, and an unwavering belief in the values of the art, that vision took root and spread. What began as an idea became a living tradition — carried forward by sensei, dojos, and students across generations.

Today, thousands continue to benefit from that vision, not just on the deck, but in their daily lives. This gathering stands as a reminder that when a vision is grounded in purpose, its impact can last far beyond a lifetime.
